       	NATIONAL ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY REQUIREMENT FOR INTERNATIONAL MEDICAL GRADUATES <hr/> 1.0 Introduction A national English Language Proficiency requirement for all International Medical Graduates (IMGs) who require registration in Australia has been accepted by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Medical Board of the Australian Capital Territory</li> <li>New South Wales Medical Board</li> <li>Medical Board of the Northern Territory</li> <li>Medical Board of Queensland</li> <li>Medical Board of South Australia</li> <li>Medical Council of Tasmania</li> <li>Medical Practitioners Board of Victoria</li> <li>Medical Board of Western Australia</li> </ul> Each state and territory registration board is charged with the responsibility of ensuring that medicine is practised in accordance with their Act. This includes ensuring that only individuals who are competent, have a sound knowledge of the English Language, and are of good character, are registered as medical practitioners. Many international medical graduates come from a non-English speaking background and the level of English competency varies greatly. Through national agreement, the state and territory registration boards have implemented an English Language Proficiency Policy that is consistent. 2.0 English Language Model A high level of English language proficiency is essential to enable practitioners to communicate with patients, other doctors and health professionals, and for maintenance of professional standards. The International English Language Testing System (IELTS) is an appropriate language testing model for international medical graduates seeking registration. The IELTS test was developed by the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate, The British Council and IDP Education Australia. The test is administered at least once a month by IELTS Australia and The British Council at over 230 centres worldwide.
